Providing a brief explanation of why I chose to recreate careers page.

The reason for recreating careers page was due to its card component with reusability, form handling, and responsive design. Here we can created a reusable card component for each cards and use it in multiple sections of webpage. This improves code maintainability and reduces redundancy and simplifies development.

I can also implement form handling which handles a subscription form. We can validate email and handle email which gives message based on the input whether the email is valid or not. On Submit we can also provide toast message which aids in user interaction. Here, TypeScript can also be used in handling form.

Similarly, redesigning careers page ensures that it looks well on various devices and screen sizes. With a responsive design, users can view and interact with the page on desktops, tablets, and mobile devices.

Overall, reusability, form handling, and responsive design is the major reason for choosing this page.
